ONLINE SAFETY

Instagram - Parent Alerts

Instagram has recently announced that it will begin to alert parents if their child repeatedly searches for self-harm content. When you dig deeper there are huge concerns, for example:

- The child's account needs to be a supervised account.
- If a parent does receive an alert, what will they do, how will they react?
- But the big one - instead of stopping the content reaching the young person in the first place, Meta (Instagram) have simply abdicated their responsibility and pushed it onto parents.

Did You Know - TikTok tracks you even if you don't use the app?

It shouldn't be any surprise that TikTok has tracking pixels all across the web. These pixels are often described as innocuous but imagine a young person who is searching and browsing topics that are very sensitive, e.g. pregnancy, mental ill health etc., ads related to these subjects are going to start showing up on almost every ad-enabled site or app and this can become problematic.

There are various things you can do, such as using a different browser (e.g. DuckDuckGo). Some ad-blockers will also block data harvesting.

App Controls to Support Children

Jenny is a mother with two teenage girls who feels the pressure of keeping up to date with online safety, new app settings and more the same as other parents. In this article and YouTube video Jenny shares how she uses app-level parental controls to manage social media use across her daughters' phones and tablets.
